COVERS RICHEST GOLD AREA IN CALIFORNIA

Vol. 12, No. 59. The County Seat Paper NEVADA CITY, CALIFORNIA The Gold Center FRIDAY, JULY 29, 1938.

Thinking Out Loud

By H. M. L.

There was a Kansas editor, whose community unfortunately produced what seemed an interminable run of bad news. Some of the news pertained to county officials who had grown careless in their service to the public, other news to ultra pious citizens whose frailties had found them out, and still other items that revealed derelictions of trust on the part of fiduciary officers in charge of public and private funds. The editor, being a conscientious egg, presently found himself an unpopular hero among what seemed to a sinful majority of his community. Advertisers who were shown up in a disparaging light, dear subscibers who figured unpleasantly in the head lines, and potentates of local influence caught in a jam, lambasted the editor and severed business relations with him. Finally the editor who found the straight and narrow path carpeted with scorpions, grew a bit querulous and ran a seven column line across his front page:

IF YOU DON'T LIKE THE NEWS IN THIS PAPER, DON'T MAKE IT.

Occasionally of course an editor makes news which he fails to report in his paper, not because of modesty, but because he hates to sully the good name of the press, even though he has proved himself a black sheep. Eventually, however, the sheriff or some hard boiled peace officer takes the trail and there follows an expose, which brother journalists duly record in their columns. So he might as well have been "first with the news." We recall the tragic event of some months ago in Modoc county, where the son of one publisher shot the rival publisher. The news appeared locally first in the columns of the late publisher, whose widow "carried on." Admittedly, however, the publisher father of the son who in a drunken humor committed murder, was in a cruel dilemna. The judge who sentenced his own son, after conviction of the crime, was not racked by greater torture.

There is vast difference between the practice metropolitan editors and those in rural districts in regard to news treatment. Your country editor frequently has knowledge of the character of those who "make news." Is is not of course always bad news. Much of the news is really of the kind celebrated in Grey's Elegy. But even with bad news, knowing the family of the one fallen from grace, and remembering the frailty of all human kind, instinctively he writes his report with a little of the salt that savors. The big city editor, however, hews to the line. He never knows where the chips are falling. In the great mass, advertisers and subscribers are lost. If he loses by one report he gains by another. A resentful community never rises to defend its fallen heroes as it will sometimes in a rural district, where a man's good and bad traits are carefully weighed, and he is condemned or commended on the preponderance of one or the other.

Brutus never is justified in the small town. His murder of Caesar for the social good overlooks the fact that Caesar's friends and neighbors liked his rugged individualism, knew him from a boy upward and, in fact had made him Caesar knowing his weaknesses but valuing above them his character and ability to get things done. No maudlin sentiment in the village saves Brutus from the noose.

The truth assumes a myriad form depending upon the eyes that see it. Some editors present their version of the truth in pastel shades, others in the stark, primary colors. Some writers give their facts a graceful, attractive form even though the subject be essentially ugly, others allow the natural ugliness of the fact to govern their report. In other words ugliness, as is perhaps the best method, is revealed in repulsive nakedness. The plaint of the many newspaper readers that they never get the exact truth in the news columns, is of course, true. But as a matter of fact they never get absolute truth anywhere. Even geologists differ widely in reading the truth in the rocks. The truth is relative. Sifted and colored it emerges in human expression. Whether in writing, painting, sculpture, or acting, it is modified by each one's personal view. Nothing illustrates this so well as the varying stories of an event told by witnesses when they give evidence in court after swearing to tell the truth.

VANDALS STEAL NEW CITY SIGNS

Max Solaro, city fire truck driver, has made 56 rustic street signs with a routing machine and installed them on Nevada City street corners. The Nevada City Chamber of Commerce furnishes the material for the signs.

Civic minded persons felt it in keeping to put these rustic signs about the city since the Tahoe National Forest headquarters are here and the Forest Service is placing similar signs along the national forest roads.

Thursday morning Solaro found six of his signs had been stolen presumably by souvenir collectors and decided not to put up any more for a time as it is expensive and useless to put these ornate signs and have them stolen. Anyone taking them off the posts must practically tear them apart, as they are securely fastened. He has been working on them for three weeks. Any one caught molesting the signs will of course be arrested for malicious mischief.

Chief of Police Garfield Robson states that this is wanton vandalism which carries a penalty of either a fine of $500, six months in the county jail or both.

However, work is going forward on three large rustic signs the lettering to be, "Welcome to Nevada City." They will be placed at the three entrances to the city, Nevada City-Grass Valley highway, Tahoe-Ukiah highway, northeast, and the Downieville highway.

The City Council recently ordered signs for no parking zones and weight limits signs for bridges at the Plaza. New estimates give a seven ton carrying weight for the bridge from the Plaza up Broad street and ten tons for the bridge crossing from the Plaza to Main street. Three regulation parking signs have been placed on Boulder street from the Plaza to Park avenue. They were ordered by the council recently and read "No Parking Day or Night."

MINERS FOUNDRY SEND ORDERS FAR AFIELD

The Miners Foundry and Supply company continues to fill many orders, some coming from the Philippines, other states and all over California as well as in Nevada County. Thirty five men have been on the payroll for many months.

An order of a number of leaching tanks has just been sent to a mine at Jimtown, near Sonora; a number of the new jigs made by inventor Ted Edinger of the firm have been sold recently, the last one going to the Gold Stripe mine at Greenville. A 100 ton daily capacity mill has been sent out to the Indian Valley Mining Company at Greenville and installed by men from the local shop.

A 200 ton ore bin was shipped to the Con Chollar, Gould and Savage mining company in Nevada state. Another small shipment of equipment has gone forward to the Prilippine Engineering Corporation in the Philippine Islands. One of the last orders filled was an electric locomotive for the Alabama mine near Auburn.

MINE WORKERS ENJOY "COUSIN JACK" FEAST

The Mine Workers Protective League enjoyed a "Cousin Jack" dinner last evening in their hall in Grass Valley. The weekly dinner was composed of beer, and delicious pasties prepared by the Kopp Bakery of Nevada City. Attorney H. Ward Sheldon, candidate for district attorney for Nevada County, spoke to the large group of miners.

CELEBRATES BIRTHDAY

S Lee Leiter, who conducts a news stand on upper Broad street, celebrated his birthday Wednesday and received many greetings and flowers. Mrs. Zella Brown sent a most exquisite bouttonnaire of ferns and a red carnation.

Mr. Leiter, native of Maryland, who was chairman of the Democratic County Central Committee of Nevada County many years, had a particularly happy event occur on his birthday when he greeted Senator W. G. McAdoo one of his party's leaders.

FIRE FIGHTING FOREST SERVICE MEN RETURN

Twelve of the thirteen men sent out from the Tahoe National forest to the huge fires in Trinity and Klamath National forests last week have returned. Emerson Varren, one of the thirteen is unreported but no fears are felt for his safety as many of the men were sent back into the mountains with ten day rations and will stay on the fires until they are extinguished. Five of the men were met at Colfax yesterday noon. Ranger F. Meggers and assistant returned Tuesday. All the men are worn and tired from the hard work, fighting the fire in steep mountainous country.

The Tahoe National Forest had six fires set by electrical storms on Wednesday and four the day before in eastern Nevada county, or Truckee-Sierraville district. All fires were small and extinguished in a short time.

M. M. Barnum, in charge of land acquisition activities in California is on an official visit to the Tahoe National forest for a few days. He will go to the Lake Tahoe area to study the problem of the lake shore line being taken over by the national forests. The measure to purchase this shore line was defeated in the House of Representatives last session.

DeWitt Nelson, superintendent of the Tahoe National forest, left yesterday for Quincy to attend a Regional Conference of Northern California Supervisors. Monday and Tuesday will be spent in San Francisco by Mr. Nelson, W. P. Lee and Logging Engineer E. G. Goldsmith. They will attend a conference on Tahoe forest transportation system.

SEN. Mc ADOO AND WIFE VISIT NEVADA CITY

Senator William Gibbs McAdoo and Mrs. McAdoo were visitors in Nevada City Wednesday. Accompanied by a group of local Democrats the senator strolled up and down Broad street and visited the new court house. which was begun under a WPA project and finished under a private contract. He much admired its modern lines. Mrs. McAdoo was invited by Judge Tuttle to occupy the wool sack in the beautiful court room in order to get a pleasing view of its convenient and beautiful interior.

Among the women who cordially greeted the senator and his wife were Mrs. Frank Finnegan, Mrs. Walter J. Hawkins, Mrs. R. R. Goyne, Postmaster Betty Martin West, Mrs. James Penrose and others.

At the city hall Senator and Mrs. McAdoo were received by Mayor Benj. Hall, City Clerk George Calanan, R. L. P. Bigelow, Chief of Police Garfield Robson, W. H. Griffith, secretary of the chamber of commerce, and others.

Following their visit here, the senator and his wife were tendered a small reception at Bret Harte Inn in Grass Valley, after which they departed for Auburn.

Jack Reeder, son of Dr. and Mrs. David Reeder of Nevada City, joined several Grass Valley boys on a two weeks vacation, the trip to be through several western national parks. They went by way of Truckee, Reno and Carson City. Jack will leave the boys at Denver to go to Kansas City where he will continue his education. He plans to study to be a lawyer. Young Reeder attended the local high school during the past two years and has made many friends here who wish him success in his planned career.

GASOLINE TAXES TOTAL $4,644,227

California collected $4,644,277 in state gasoline taxes in June, an increase of 3.35 per cent over the June, 1937, collection of $4,296,311.

This report was made today by the state board of equalization which has charge of the galoline tax collections.

In spite of the recent business recession the board records show that gasoline taxes collected during the first six months of this year total $88,735 above those of the first six months of last year. Collections to date this year were given as $24,997,853.

ROTARY SPEAKER GIVES HISTORY OF LAND TITLES

Roland Wright, title insurance manager for Nevada County, was the speaker at Rotary yesterday. Among the special events celebrated before the program, was a congratulatory ceremony for Dr. Bernard W. Hummelt, whose first born, a son, arrived last Saturday.

The history of realty titles in California and Nevada county was sketched briefly by Roland Wright. In California under Spanish rule all land was vested in the King of Spain. Under Mexican rule, following the revolution, when Mexico became independent, land grants were made to settlers and these were usually verbal and therefore indefinite.

First evidence of title was possession and testimony of the defacto owner was usually admitted without question. When California became a part of the United States, all land not under private ownership at the time reverted to the United States government which in turn granted to the state mineral and swamp land and tide lands, that is to say, the lands covered between high and low tide. A huge acreage of land was also granted the state as an endowment for schools.

None of the Spanish grants included any land in Nevada county, Mr. Wright stated, though John Sutter claimed all the land, roughly, enclosed between Sacramento and Marysville and from those two points eastward to the crest of the Sierras. Sutter's claims, when examined by the commission appointed to examine land titles in 1850, was reduced to the size of the City of Sacramento. Most other Mexican land grants were confirmed by the commission and these, in many counties where grants were found, continue to be basic in land titles.

The Central Pacific railroad was granted the odd numbered sections of land on both sides of the railroad in a 20 mile strip, but the railroad title to the right of way of 400 feet was restricted in that no sale could be made so that in time of war, the government might have free and immediate access to the railroad. However, there have been a considerable number of violations of this condition, which can now only be rectified by an act of congress.

In 1914 certificates of title began to be issued, and in 1926 title insurance came into use in transferring real estate.

ANDREW TOBIASSEN REPORTED BADLY HURT

Sheriff Carl Tobiassen received word early yesterday morning that his brother Andrew Tobiassen, Grass Valley dairyman, had been seriously injured in an automobile accident Wednesday evening in Sacramento. Sheriff Tobiassen left with Mrs. Andrew Tobiassen at 6 o'clock yesterday morning for Sacramento.

The Sacramento Bee reports that Andrew Tobiassen, 46, is in the Sacramento Hospital with a possible fracture of the skull he suffered when the car he was driving crashed against the guard rail of the Arcade Bridge on the Auburn Boulevard.

Tobiassen and Howard Dunton, 22 of Loomis, were taken to the Sacramento Hospital by Highway Patrolman Jack Costa and I C. Kimball. Dpnton's injuries are not serious.

Officer Costa reported Tobiassen apparently fell asleep and failed to make a slight curve approaching the bridge.

Mr. Kitts lived at Town Talk many years and still has a home there. He is highly esteemed as a splendid citizen and his many friends here hope for him success in his campaign for the office he is seeking. Mr. Kitts' son, Charles Kitts of Town Talk left today for Fallbrok for a ten day visit with his father.

Mrs. Rosseter Delays Vote At Lava Cap

After assuring the Mine Workers Protective League that the Labor Board would hold a vote in the Lava Cap mine within the next few days, regarding what labor organization shall be the bargaining agency, Mrs. Alice M. Rosseter, regional Labor Board director, on July 26, wrote Robert J. Harris, secretary of the local CIO affiliate in this city, the following letter:

"Dear Mr. Harris:

In reply to your letter of July 22nd, I wish to advise that a petition for certification of representatives at the Lava Cap mine has filed with this office. Attached to the petition was a list of 96 employes requesting that an election be conducted by the board.

In as much as your organization will not consent to the Board's conducting this election, nothing further will be done in the matter of this petition at this time.

A copy of your wire urging that the Board appeal the Circuit Court of Appeals decision in the Idaho Maryland case was sent to the Board. I will advise you as soon as I receive a reply.

Very truly yours,
(Signed)
ALICE M. ROSSETER,
Regional Director.

The letter comes as a great surprise to the Mine Workers Protective League who were led to believe that the vote was to be taken this week. An examination of the Wagner act reveals the fact that when any considerable number of workers in any plant, falling in the interstate commerce category as does the Lava Cap mine, ask for a vote to determine the bargaining agency, the Labor Board must conduct the vote.

The CIO affiliate has been the bargaining election for the last year following a vote taken last spring among the Lava Cap employes. This agreement expires, it is understood, on August 1, next Monday.

BANCROFT DRIVE OPENED BY NEV. COUNTY GROUP

A Nevada County organization of many public spirited men and women, headed by H. C. Bennetts, Dr. Carl P. Jones and Frances G. Jones of Grass Valley, and Richard J. Bennetts of Nevada City and other county leaders, is actively at work on a campaign organization supporting the candidacy of Philip Bancroft of Walnut Creek for the Republican nomination for U. S. Senator. Outspoken with a courageous platform aimed at the incumbent U. S. Senator William Gibbs McAdoo and the New Deal, Bancroft has made remarkable progress in lining up Republican strength for the August 30 primary; and is now being conceded the G. O. P. nomination for the November 8 run off.

Declaring the present system of relief, as administered by government agencies, has turned hundreds of thousands of erstwhile self-respecting and independent Americans into beggars, and that California is destined to become the poor house of the nation if definite intelligent action is not taken soon, Bancroft reiterated his charges against the national administration of "crack-pot legislators of crackpot schemes."

"Those who work and earn the money that support relief, rather than those who receive it, should control its expenditure, and it should be made a criminal offense to collect CIO union dues out of the money paid on WPA or other relief. To see the communistically controlled Workers' Alliance telling the government officials what they shall and shall not do, and to see those same public officials lie down and take it like scared puppies, is inconceivable but true. If you elect me, I'll do my best to represent the small business man and the workers who are earning and paying the fare, instead of toadying to the dead heads who take the stand that they have a God-given right to force you to support them at ease out of the real workers' earnings.

"The worst effect of this administration, or rather mis-administration, of relief is not, however, the appalling waste of the taxpayers' money, bad as that is, but the steady breaking down of the morale of literally millions of our citizens. Men and women cannot be encouraged to go on relief and discouraged from doing an honest day's work when they get there, without sooner or later having their American independence and manhood destroyed. And, once lost, this is something that all the pump priming in the world can never restore."

Bancroft is the only Republican candidate for U. S. Senator with a definite platform of revisions and remedies offered the voters. His principal opponent in the August 30 primary, Ray L. Riley has filed on the Republican, Democratic, Townsend and Progressive tickets

Probation Officer A. W. McGagin was an official visitor in Graniteville Wednesday.

The argument on petition for writ of review filed by George R. Anderson, attorney for C. E. Circle and others convicted in the Nevada County superior court on a charge of rioting, in which the defendants sought the return of forfeited bail money which Judge Raglan Tuttle ordered applied to payment of their fines, was ordered submitted on briefs when it came up for argument Tuesday morning in the Third District Court of Appeal at Sacramento. District Attorney Vernon Stoll opposed the petition.

When it was called for argument he and Attorney Geo. Anderson stipulated that the matter be submitted on briefs.

Communists Oppose Merriam

California is facing a paradoxical situation whereby conceivably this year's election can be decided by the vote of refugees from the Mid-West drought area. More than 221,000 of these farm workers have entered the State in the past thirty months, according to U. S. Farm Placement Bureau. A large proportion have been here long enough to establish residence.

Communists have been actively engaged in missionary work abong the migrants, according to reliable reports reaching Merriam headquarters in San Francisco. Contrary to usual practice, a statement from the headquarters says, the communists are not seeking support for their own party candidates but rather are urging the defeat of Governor Merriam. Literature, circulated through the valleys from the radical organization in San Francisco, attempts to brand the State's chief executive as a "corporation tool" and each circular carries the slogan "Beat Merriam." The Governor is stamped as Communism's Number 1 enemy.

"The drive," the statement continues, "has as its objective to bring about the defeat of the governor through this means in the belief that the refugees, if they vote as a block, hold the balance of power in the coming elections. When we consider that state registration this year is estimated at 3,200,000, it readily will be seen that such calculation is within the realm of possbility. The propaganda, of course, follows the familiar Communist formula of playing on the psychology of distressed and disheartened people.

"The situation would be more disturbing were it not for the character of the refugees, themselves. Reports from the interior indicate that a large proportion, if not a majority, are earnest, industrious workers ,anxious and willing to work and ready to assume their places in the community. Like the pioneer settlers, they are believers in American institutions and in time would become sturdy, useful citizens. It is their misfortune and California's problem that they were led to come here, seeking work, at a time when there is not work enough to go around. A movement is now under way to induce the Federal Government to discourage this immigration and to return to their homes such workers as can not be absorbed here."

THIS AND THAT

By ROY GRIFFITH DEETER

Fashion Notes: Well the fashion moguls inform us that the winter styles are now in full display. As far as this poor worm is concerned they can buzz along with it. If there is anything that ruffles our usually placid disposition it is people who thrust Fall and Winter fashions upon us in July. It is almost as bad as those who whoop about life beginning at forty—positively something should be done about it—how about a law agin it? We have so many laws already another one would create hardly a ripple and it might save us from gazing upon the newest of fur trimmed suits on a broiling July day!

This week's riddle: What is the difference between a camel and a domendary? (a) 8 stomachs and 1 hump, (b) I stomach and 8 humps, (c) 16 humps and nary a stomach?

Personalities: Duke Dorf wandering around with that certain look in his eye that one usually associates with young men and spring. We understand he is very much "that way" about a certain beauteous damselle in G. V. Add this to the fact that he is "in training" for athletic events to come and you really have something. Roberta Farmer fussing around about the cloudy skies on account of because she had a swimming date. Mrs. Hal Davis rejoicing her new book "The Year Is Round" that will be off the presses this fall. (Would we had so good a cause to rejoice)! Mr. George Legg very busily watering his lawn in the newest of shorts.

This week's perfect piece: "The little halibut is a merry mutt, and frolicsome and friendly is the flounder. I like the kindly face of the pretty little plaice, but the bloater is a vulgar little bounder." Too true, too true, we always did loathe bloaters, even during our boarding school days.

We wandered up to the Court House yesterday forenoon, in our least attractive dress and our oldest babushka firmly beneath our chin, and what happens? We run into great gobs of political luminaries! Senator William Gibbs McAdoo and his wife, and our own Congressman and Mrs. Englebright. We are consoling ourselves with the thought that as every one else had on their best bibs and tuckers, we were at least different, if that is of any value!

And with this, we say to you, cheerio, everybody.

MOLYBDENUM IS SLATE RANGE MINING DISTRICT

Jerry Platz is developing a large body of molybdenum ore in the Slate Range mining district near Camptonville. He stated reports on samples have been excellent and there is also a good market for the mineral which is used to harden steel. Platz has been prospecting the area for the past four years depending on his recovery of gold for a living. It will require building four miles of road to get to the deposit. He will have to build a reduction plant to treat the ore for market. The ore is quoted at 42 cents per pound in the crude state. The ledge on the property has been opened up about 65 feet and is about four feet in width along the vein. Hal D. Draper, local assayer states molybdenum ore shows up in the mines in the Nevada county district and could be mined at a profit with other ores when found in large enough quantities. There are deposits of this high grade ore at English Mountain in eastern Nevada county.

A Character

H. M. L. Jr.

He came up to us just as we walked on the first tee. Plump little chap about seven or eight years old, I should say. Right at first, we didn't pay much attention to him. Just a little kid, we thought, running around the way kids always do. Well, we hauled out our drivers and took a few professional looking swings to warm up. It was right then that the kid began developing into a character. We looked around and there he was with both bags on his shoulder. He was just about as high as a brassie, only wider. "Hey, kid," we said. "Lay that stuff down. It's too heavy for you, you're too small. Besides we like to carry them."

"I like to carry golf bags", he said. Eagerness and willingness took turns shaping his chubby freckled face into a broad smile. Well, we drove off and taking a firm line with the young chap, lifted the bags off his willing shoulders. "I'll come along with you," he said, "and keep an eye on the ball." We walked a hundred yards or so to my ball. I laid down my bag and played the ball a ways farther. Then I turned around to pick up my bag, and where do you think it was? It was—you're right. It was on chubby. There he was, broad, helpful grin, ragged overalls, black bottomed bare feet, and bag on shoulder ready to go.

"Chubby," I said, "in the dignified manner of an old chap speaking with a child, " how old are you?" "L'm eight," straight way did he reply. "Well, chubby," I said, still in the great uncle manner, "that is older than you have been in the past, but it is too young to carry my golf clubs. Hand them over." "But I like to carry golf bags", his big, blue eyes registered wistfulness. "Chubby," I said, "you will receive no money for this; hand them over." He protested that he didn't want any money, he just liked to carry golf bags and watch the play, that was all. Finaly I snaggled the bags away from him again.

We arrived at the next tee with Chubby still busting about our ankles. I teed off and the ball went about a hundred and fifty yards; not so bad, but not bad for me. As the ball sailed through the air, the peace of the quiet world or green turf and blue sky was shattered by a bull-like cry from chubby. "Ugly!" he bellowed, "ugly, ugly, ugly!" "Say," I scowled, "how do you mean ugly? You mean that shot was ugly? How ugly?" "Yes, ugly," he sneered, "especially compared to those four women ahead of you."

Well our little buddy kept chumming with us, making us stumble over him, yelling "ugly," at the top of our swing and offering to carry our bags. "Pal", we explained, "you are young, happy, untrampered by golf bags. Have a good time. Now is the butterfly period of life for you; presently you will be on old, dried up chrysalis, guey. Leave us be. Leave us. We love to carry our clubs. It is part of the game. We wouldn't feel right without them, see?"

Well, he kept with us and at us and with us and at us for some time. He was full of talk, that ragged little kid was. Presently we decided to take a firm line with him, as older chaps should do with kids. "Bud," we said, "what is your name. We are going to report you to your parents and the truant officer and the police." "My name," he intoned with a shade of the grand manner, "is Walt Whitman Zederoski. But every body calls me Sonny. You can see why they call me Sonny. I'm real cheerful."

He was cheerful all right, and he was full of hot air, and bouncing with hundreds of footpounds of energy. Underfoot, in danger of being beheaded by a wild swing, in front of us waving his arms or behind us hollering "ugly!" he was with us like a swarm of bees. He was a caution, that kid was. We thought if we gave him something useful it might occupy him. "Bud," we said—" "My name is Sonny, and you know it". "O. K. Sonny, we want you to help us. You wander around, way over there and take a gander for lost golf balls. If you find any keep them till you have several goed ones, then we will buy them from you. We pay up to a nickle apiece for the best ones." With that we indicated a place about two hundred yards behind us.

Our character was off like a flash. "Ah," thought we, "our problem is solved. A little caginess, a little Ulyssesian subtlety and all goes well. I made a neat spoon shot, relieved as I was by the pleasant vacuum of Sonny's absence. I approached the ball for another neat shot and a twinge weakened me. In my ears was that familiar bellow "ugly," awful ugly, I saw that and it was awful ugly." It was Sonny. In his dirty little hand were two lopsided golf balls. "Sonny," we said, "those balls are lousy, we will not buy them". "All right," said Sonny, "I will play them mpself Let me use your——" "No, no! no!" we screamed.

Well, Sonny wandered ahead for a while running back ocassionally to tell us he had driven off the robin and taken his worms, all of them, yes all of them, every one. Or else he had found another ball only it was a dandelion ffuff. Or else he was just friendly. Presently a fat man appeared on the fairway, some distance away. Sonny drifted off that way. Before we turned around a knoll and out of sight we looked back. There was Sonny wrestling for possession of the fat man's golf bag. That is what I call a real character, that Sonny.

EMPLOYERS NOT YET REGISTERED NUMBER 13,000

A concerted drive to complete registration of some 13,000 employers in California, who hire from four to seven persons, was announced by Edward E. Steele, representative of the State Department of Employment in Grass Valley.

Mr. Steele said that in Nevada County, there are approximately fifty employers who have failed to register with the department, and as a result, their employees do not have sufficient protection on job insurance.

Actually, said Mr. Steele, little more than half of the known employers in the four to seven group have registered with the department, leaving nearly seventy thousand unprotected workers in the state.

"This factor is important with the approach of the third quarter of 1938," he asserted, "as after September 30, any employee who has worked in this category has a valid claim if he or she is out of a job.

"Should a worker whose employer has failed to register and pay contributions file a claim for unemployment compensation, the Department of Employment must pay him benefits, but long delays will result, as the employer first must be checked as to whether or not he is subject to the act.

"Consequently, it is highly important for this group to register immediately, not only for their own protection in avoidance of interest penalties on contributions, but to protect their employees in the future."

Registration blanks may be obtained at 111 South Auburn Street, Grass Valley.

CAMP PAHATSI SEASON CLOSES

The last week of Scout Camp Pahatsi closed Sunday, July 24 with one hundred and twenty one scouts and cubs checking out. This group was the largest that Camp Pahatsi has even seen, but not the last one.

The three glorious weeks ended with a score of no casualties, while on the other hand there was a very profitable record of learning and enjoyment. Wednesday the camp split into two groups, cubs and scouts, and spent the day away from the camp, the scouts on an overnight hike to Castle Peak, and the cubs to a picnic on Lake Van Norden. While scouts and cubs use the camp at the same time, the programs are operated independently of each other.

Thursday of last week the camp was visited by E. I. Vredenburgh, a camp inspector from the National office, who was much impressed by the location of camp. He gave high recommendation for the eating, the swimming and sanitation facilities of the camp. While Pahatsi is still in relative infancy due chiefly to lack of funds, Mr. Vredenburgh stated that it had great possibilities.

WELL BABY CLINIC

The Well Baby Clinic conducted by the elementary school P. T. A. was well attended Tuesday afternoon. Dr. Emmaline Banks was assisted by Red Cross Nurse Hazel LaTell. Present also was Miss Kahn, dental hygienist of the Bureau of Child Welfare. P. T. A. members assisted in examination work.

JUST WONDERIN'

I wonder about summer togs
When skimpy garments come to view,
And ask, "when clothing really clothed,
What did the burden wearers do?"
How could they walk with ease and grace,
Those dear, old fashioned ladies fair,
In trailing gowns, with forms compressed
And heads bowed down with weight of hair?

I wonder at the good and bad taste, the propriety and absurdity displayed in the designing and selection of feminine apparel. Perhaps the designers, who often do turn out many ravishing and useful garments, are not wholly to blame for the bizarre effects which sometimes aflict the roving eye: it may be they are catering to popular demand and simply giving the ladies just what they ask for; be that as it may, from the days of leopard skin togs, down to this age of wispy nothings, women have wisely and unwisely chosen between the decorative and appropriate, and the ugly and inappropriate.

I wonder if we women are as original as we like to believe we are; if so, why do we appropriate the clothing of men, their trousers, ties, shirts, hats, etc.? Should the men make retaliatory raids upon our wardrobes, shrieks of dismayed disapproval would greet them upon every hand.

I don't know why I got off on this subject, it is unlimited in scope, controversial to a degree and in a great measure dangerous. But I must say that the time, the place and the garment, should be made to synchronize more or less harmoniously and that our wardrobes should be as becoming and appropriate to the occasion as possible. Upon many occasions our attire is eminently correct; formal dress and diamonds are never worn while lolling upon sandy beaches or breasting the wild sea waves; a bathing suit is not donned in preparation for a brilliant night of grand opera, shorts do not grace the fashionable church wedding, house gowns and riding breeches would be declasse at the ball; but are we sure that our street and shopping garb is just what it should be? Are we?

I wonder with what miracles of achievement, the ingenuity and daring of man will next astound us. Winged palaces whisk around the world in a flash, sans a crash, marsupial planes dart to and fro above the troubled sea, and the incorrigible Corrigan who flies and lies with equal facility, goes to Ireland; these and other spectacular events happening within a few days of each other, have claimed our bemused attention and riveted our minds upon pathways through the skies.

And now, in this age of wonders, why doesn't some one concoct or compound a smudge, mist, spray — something which can be dropped upon forest fires from planes flying above affected areas and so preserve the beauty and wealth which it has taken nature hundreds of years to produce? "Impossible?" Well, the impossible is being done almost every day now, and there are always men who delight in responding to the urge of two little words—"Why not."

Uncle Silas says: "Judging from recent happenings in Texas, the old fashioned medicine show is coming back into popular favor. Wouldn't it be awful if our candidates should all begin to sing and fiddle?"

GRIZZLY BEARS OF EARLY DAY WERE PEACEFUL

BERKELEY, July 28.—Interesting sidelights in California's extinct grizzly bear, which tend to show the male at least in a very good light, have just been published by Professor Joseph Grinnell, director of the Museum of Vertebrate Zoology at the University of California. No less an authority than Vital Cayton Reche, whose father founded Fallbrook, San Diego County, in 1869, states that he met the great bear often while riding range on his father's holdings and elsewhere.

If the observer stood still and made no aggressive move, the male bear invariably would rise on his haunches, after the fashion of a picket pin ground squirrel, and look intently at the intruder. After watching awhile it would shake its head from side to side, as though deciding against an attack, drop on all fours and start running away, according to Reche's account as described by Professor Grinnell.

But the white man very evidently did not accept the male grizzly's offer of peace, nor fear the much more aggressive attitude of the female. According to Dr. Grinnell's chronicle a certain George Nidever shot 45 grizzlies in the year 1837 alone, in the vicinity of San Luis Obispo. Altogether during his wanderings up and down the coast he thought he had killed upwards of 200 grizzlies. Judging from the tone of the record he left behind him, he shot the bear for the most part just to show what a good marksman he was. At the time there was no sale for the skins and no one took the trouble to remove them. The hunter just let the bear lay.

Some vaqueros delighted in capturing the bears alive, to use them in fights with bulls. This sport flourished at one time in California.

MUSKRATS UNDER BAN IN FRANCE

BERKELEY, July 28.—The government of the Republic of France is concerned about one invasion which has not received very much publicity, but is certainly making itself felt. That invasion is the Amreican muskrate, the American red fox and the South American nutria or beaver. Before they are through these unwelcome visitors threaten to do more damage than any invaders that France has been forced to entertain for many years. As a result of this invasion the government has established a bureau in its department of agriculture to deal with this problem alone.

Details of this invasion, and the attempts being made by the French to control it, were contained in a paper sent to the annual meeting of the American Society of Mammalogists, now in session at the University of California by Dr. E. Bourdette, director of the Museum of Natural History in Paris.

The little animals were first brought to France in captivity, to be shown in zoos and elsewhere. But a number of them escaped. They are now overrunning portions of the country, and, due to the dearth of natural foes, are multiplying fast. The muskrat appears to be doing the most damage as it burrows into the banks of streams, causes breaks in dikes and canals and generally makes a nuisance of itself.

As Dr. Bourdette announced, that he could not be present at the meeting, it was arranged to have the paper incorporated in the record of the convention.

Miss Elma Hecker had as guests Wednesday Rev. and Mrs. Herbert Vernon Harris. Rev. Harris is pastor of Trinity Episcopal church in Los Angeles. He was rector of Trinity Episcopal church in Nevada City about 14 years ago. They journeyed on to Lake Tahoe for a few days vacation.

Mr. and Mrs. William Treglown have as guests this week Mr. and Mrs. John Rau and daughter of Phoenix, Arizona. Mrs. Rau is a niece of Mrs. Elizabeth Lester of Nevada City .

Political Announcement

When an accident occurs along the highway or a car goes over a cliff, killing one of the occupants and injuring the others, who would you rather see arrive on the scene? A Doctor who is also Coroner and can render the necessary life-saving measures to prevent further death or a lay undertaker who must get the injured in for medical aid?

We have in our County capable Undertaking Establishments, whose business is burial. This is NOT the duty of the Coroner's Office, which must determine causes of death. When autopsies are necessary, they must call in a physician to make the required post-mortem examination.

When chemical analysis in poison cases are required or diseased tissues must be examined, lay coroners send these specimens to outside sources for diagnosis at the tax-payers expense. The undersigned had a special course at Rush Medical College to enable him to do this work.

A physician qualified, trained, and equipped to handle all such cases here in our own County is better fitted for the office of Coroner than a layman. Many states and communities have recognized the fact that the Coroner's Office rightfully belongs to a professional man, whose mission and duty qualifies him for this office.

Your support is respectfully solicited for Coroner.

JANE WITHERS IN "RASCALS" HERE TOMORROW

There's no telling where Jane Withers will pop up next.

America's effervescent Number 1 mischief maker will land in Nevada City tomorrow with a gypsy caravan and pitch camp at the Nevada Theatre in an appropriately named 20th Century- Fox production, "Rascals".

This dimpled imp has been a jockey in a recent picture an orphan in another—but not until "Rascals" has she pulled all of her juvenile jack rabbits out of the hat at once.

Aided by Borrah Minevitch and his refuggees from a musical madhouse, the harmonica gang, Jane cavorts through the picture with the skill of a seasoned trouper and leaves her movie fans hysterical with mirth while Robert Wilcox and Rochelle Hudson untangle the skeins of a love that is hampered by a jealous txigane and a title-seeking mother.

Rohelle, fleeing marriage to a titled fortune hunter, stumbles into the camp where Wilcox, a college youth, is seeing the world from the romantic atmosphere of Romany songs and dances.

HOORAY! ALPINE COUNTY STILL IS REPUBLICAN

Alpine county, the smallest county in the state, is the only county in the sixth assembly district which shows a majority registration for the Republican party for the coming August primary election. This is according to Allen G. (Scoop) Thurman, Colfax newspaperman and candidate for assemblyman from this district, who visited that county on Monday. There are a total of 210 voters registered in Alpine county, 142 being Republicans, 65 Democrats, one Socialist and two nonpartisan. In 1870 the county had a population of about 15,000 persons, and Markleeville ,the county seat, was an incorporated city of 5000 population. The demonetization of silver in 1873 started the decline in population of the county.

In visiting Alpine County, Thurman completed a complete tour of the ten counties of the sixth assembly district.

Mrs. E. J. Haverstock of Washington and daughter in law, Mrs G. D. Reynolds of Los Angeles visited Mrs. Leslie Land Wednesday. Mr. Haverstock who has been quite ill is showing some improvement.

Mrs. W. Weege has received a letter from her son, Carlos Casmore, who is at Citizens Military camp near Santa Barbara, stating that he was the only one who won the marksman medal. His scores were 20 out of 24 kneeling and 42 out of 50, prone. So far his company, Company C, has made first in best parade form, sports and athletics.

AS LIFE'S PENDULUM SWINGS

If during life's exciting moments, those of us who have been cooperating—may seem to feel that our time has come to share in the driver's seat.

We make strenuous efforts to attain that most coveted position—which marks a man as being at the top of the ladder—

and we revel in the fact that we will soon be seated by his side.

But it is easy to slip from a seat meant for a single soul, proving that two bottoms can be pinched as easily as one.

UNEMPLOYED OF COUNTY RECEIVE $40,649 TOTAL

Unemployment compensation checks in Nevada County are finding their way into the hands of the groceryman, the department stores, the landlords, and a dozen other classifications of business enterprises here.

This announcement was made yesterday by Edward E. Steele, manager of the Grass Valley office of the State Department of Employment through which claims for unemployment compensation are made.

Steele said that a total of $40,649.95 in actual cash had been distributed to claimants here up to July 1, in 3,408 unemployment compensation checks. During the month of June, he said, claimants in this county received 802 checks totaling $9,514.07.

"But the mere fact this money is coming into the community doesn't mean much," said Steele, "unless there is a general idea of what's being done with it.

"A survey of several thousand checks made in Sacramento revealed this week that the vast majority of checks received here had been cashed by banks and food stores.

DOLE ADDICT IS NEW U. S. CURSE

By RALPH H. TAYLOR

Every doctor who administers habit-forming drugs to help a patient over a period of crisis recognizes that he must exercise the greatest possible prduence and discretion to avert disastrous consequences.

And public relief officials are beginning to learn by tragic, disheartening experience that economic opiates are equally dangerous.

Serious as the narcotic problem may be, dole-addiction is far more dangerous to the welfare of California and the nation today than dope-addiction was at its worst.

Thoughtful Californians, anxious to avert a complete breakdown of fundamental standards, have much to ponder, for there are danger signals on every hand.

Twice, within recent weeks, strikers, who quit their jobs voluntarily —and whose jobs were open, if they desired them—have staged sit-down strikes in the headquarters of the State Relief Administration in an effort to force compliance with their demands for relief payments.

In both instances, Relief Administrator Harold L. Pomeroy has stood firm, serving notice on the strikers that no state dole can be paid to those who refuse to take available employment But the fact remains that in scores of other cases men who refused work have been supported on relief rolls at the expense of taxpayers already over-burdened with caring for the needy and unemployed. Federal relief agencies, in repeated instances, have financed the strikes and encouraged workers to quit their jobs by paying strikers from the public treasury.

As a consequence, the number of strikes has doubled and trebled and tax bills have catapulted to new highs. And as a further consequence, WPA workers have organized their own union—the Workers Alliance of America, with 1300 locals in 46 states—and have laid seige to the government, demanding wage increases.

"The question of wage increases for 2,600,000 low-paid WPA workers," declares David Lasser, Socialist organizer-president of the Alliance, "is a major issue in the primary campaigns and the November elections. Our organization is in the political campaigns with both feet."

And to give force to his demands, Mr .Lasser warns that his union has 400,000 dues-paying members and 400,000 more who don't pay dues now, but who doubtless will if some government agency can be induced to part with the money.

Already successful in securing pay increases for WPA workers in 13 Southern States, the reliefers' union now wants a $10 per month wage increase in District 11, comprising Kansas, Missouri, West Virginia, Delaware, Maryland, the District of Columbia and part of Texas.

It is an amazing picture—an amazing commentary on how far the United States has drifted from sound standards. With every man added to the relief rolls and every pay-increase granted, the relief union gains in political power and in its capacity to add more men to the relief rolls.

Meanwhile, new refugees continue to pour into California at a rate of more than 10,000 per month—120,000 per year—and the pressure for bigger relief payments and bigger pensions increase in direct ratio.

California taxpayers may well give heed to the recent warning sounded by the Kern County Board of Supervisors. Said the board, in a formal protest to the federal government:

"The continued migration of tens of thousands of indigent nemployed and unemployables from other states to California is creating social and economic problems that threaten the very foundations of our state."

Then, training its guns on the Farm Security Administration, the Kern County Board declared: "These people are encouraged to migrate to and remain in the State of California by aid extended them by the Farm Security Administration, pending such times as they become eligible under California law for public assistance."

California taxpayers, if they expect to escape bankruptcy, need to make their influence felt both in California and in Washington. The relief union boasts that it is getting into politics "with both feet". Perhaps taxpayers need a foot in the door, too.

Alaska Juneau Trams 13,000 Tons Per Day

Feature yourself with an ordinary truckload of Alaska Juneau mine run ore, then realize that the entire truckload is worth only a matter of $1.50 a ton as far as its gold content goes. Realize further, that if you are going to make any money with so much rock and so little gold, that you must handle truckload after truckload of ore.

Perhaps if you saw a string of one-ton capacity trucks—say 13,000 trucks in line; a line of trucks which would reach nearly 35 miles from end to end—you would realize the significance of the Alaska Juneau gold mine's daily output.

Now let's hunt for the gold, as the Alaska Juneau would—leaving out, of course, all but the basic processes. The 13,000 tons of ore are trammed out of the mine every 24 hours of the day, but milling that much ore for such a small quantity of gold—averaging approximately $1.50 a ton—would be waste effort, and so only 7500 of those tons are sent through the vast battery of crushers.

Men stand beside an endless conveyor belt and push off the rock that shows quartz, in which the gold values lie. The balance of the rock is sent to the waste dump.

It has been a long known fact that the Alaska Juneau has been recovering gold with some 90 per cent efficiency which is remarkable in taking into consideration the amount of ore mined for a few cents in gold return.

This gold, up to 1936, was wholly recovered by its own great specific gravity, the gold settling out when the sands are agitated on shaking tables, but today, with experimentation going forward, about 1500 tons of the 7500 tons of ore are being worked each day by flotation.

Flotation to the layman, is interesting in that it involves agitating the mineral bearing sands and slimes to which chemicals have been added, with rotating paddles. A thick foam is whipped up and the gold and other minerals gather in the form on the surface and are skimmed off.

Old processes at the Alaska Juneau simply involved running the finely crushed ore over shaking tables to precipitate the mineral content by gravity. Today, flotation and gravity have been combined and the recovery of mineral values reduced to such a fine science that even the water which has washed the ore and passed off in slime is processed for gold recovery.

Only a matter of months ago, tons of coarse sand were run out to the tailing dumps as waste, and the same applied to tons of slime. Today 1000 tons of slime are run through flotation tanks and 500 tons of the coarse sand are likewise treated after regrinding. More flotation equipment will be installed and more coarse sand and more slime will be treated.

In dollars and cents, each ton of the 1500 tons of slime and sand returns only a few cents in gold per ton after the costs of processing have been paid for, but it does amount to an appreciable sum in the aggregate, and it is safe to say, places the Alaska Juneau definitely on the top rung of mines for cheap mining efficiency.

Alaska Juneau declared the regular quarterly dividend of 15 cents a share and the usual extra of 15 cents. Both are payable August 1 to stock of record July 5.

Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Bosworth left yesterday for San Francisco where they will attend furniture market week and also visit a brother of Mr. Bosworth, Walter Bosworth, Sr., who is critically ill in a hospital.

Misses Donnie Marie and Virginia Lee Johnston of Sacramento are visiting their grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Will Johnston.

The members purchased the lot last winter and now have the building well on the way to completion. There will be a delegation of visitors from the church in Sacramento. Brother George Thrane is the pastor.

Miss Catherine Stephens who cracked a bone in her arm when she fell while skating about a week ago is getting along nicely. She expects to have the cast off in another week.

Clack, mining promoter and former manager of the Giant King mine, was arraigned Wednesday afternoon before Justice of the Peace Walter Mobley and charged with violating the state act regarding payments of labor. Complaining witnesses are Weston S. Williamson, Joe L. Williamson, J. R. Funk, Chas. W. Cope, F. A. McElroy and R. M. LaSalle.
